Frequently Asked Questions

Where do I find out more about apprenticeships?

A full list of apprenticeships available for use in England can be found at Apprenticeship Frameworks Online. The individual framework documents detail what types of role learners may be employed in, give background regarding the sector, list the component qualifications, duration, specific detail re Key and Functional skills, ERR, PLTS and Guided Learning Hours etc.

AFO website searching tip: Frameworks developed specifically for the health sector all contain the word 'Health' in the title eg Health (Clinical Healthcare Support). To bring up all the apprenticeships developed specifically for use in the health sector type in 'health,' tick the 'current frameworks' box and tick 'Skills for Health' and 'Skills for Care and Development'. You can also search for non-health related apprenticeships on this site eg business and administration, cleaning etc by changing your search criteria accordingly.

You can see the last start dates on our Frameworks page and you may also find the National Apprenticeship Service website useful.

What qualifications are included in an apprenticeship?

The attached document gives an overview of the different qualifications and workbooks required for each country and each type of apprenticeship framework. It also details the differences between frameworks during the transition from NVQ to QCF qualifications. For Apprenticeship frameworks in England and Wales issued or updated from April 2011 onward please use Apprenticeship Frameworks Online to see the current and all archived framework documents.

What are the Functional and Key Skills Qualifications and Exemptions?

If you are enquiring whether or not a particular GCSE/Key Skills qualification is allowable, please visit the AFO website and refer to the framework in question. Go to the frameworks library, search for your framework title, and then open the PDF. You will find all the information on transferable skills within these documents. You can also view a full list of allowable exemptions in the Knowledge base section of the ACE website.

Please note that SASE was modified in February 2015 effecting Functional and Key Skills exemptions for learners starting on or after 6th April 2015, please refer to the new guidance on the ACE website. For learners who started before 6th April 2015, the original guidance must be followed.

If you enquiring about a proxy exemption for key skills in a Blueprint framework please refer to this document.

Where can I find the Employment Rights and Responsibilities workbook?

The Apprenticeship Training Guide and Workbook for Dispensing and Pharmacy Assistants and Pharmacy Technicians can be found here.
